

LONG DELAY IN TARIFF ACTION

At Present Rate Senate
Will Argue Measure One
Full Year

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—When will the senate dispose of the tariff bill? This is an almost universal question at the Capital and one that is being asked throughout the country. Guesses—and admittedly they are no more than that—run as high as five months. It seems fairly certain that a final vote will not be reached under two months more.

Usually it takes from two to three months to put a tariff measure through the senate. The present bill has been under consideration for five weeks but as yet less than two schedules have been disposed of and most of the big fights, such as those on sugar, hides, wool, steel and lumber, are yet to come. At this rate taking into account that there are 112 schedules exclusive of a score of administrative provisions in the bill, the time necessary for passage would exceed one year.

OPPOSITION ACTIVE.
Republican leaders plan to continue the pressure of night sessions in an effort to speed up a final vote but Senator Underwood of Alabama, the Democratic leader, has publicly informed the majority that the length of daily sessions will make little difference as to the ultimate date on which the bill is voted on.

With a bill of this magnitude in which a great deal is involved, said Senator Underwood, "it is our right and privilege to present our viewpoint to the country. We are going to let the American people know what is in this bill first and when that is done, then if you have a majority of votes to pass this bill you can do so."

This bill probably has more amendments than any ever before presented to the senate. Each of the 2,057 changes made in the house measure by the finance committee must be passed on and after that is done the measure will be thrown open to general amendments. Big fights will follow then as the Democrats have denounced their intention of undertaking to have a number of them restored to the free list.

INTER-PARTY FIGHTS.
Thus far the finance committee has not been overtaken on a single amendment but in the face of opposition from the Republican side it has modified several of its original propositions. This policy probably will be pursued to a greater or less degree so as to reduce the number of open fights within the majority ranks. While there has been no general assault on the measure from the Republican side, certain items have been attacked and it has been indicated that such attacks will continue.

Now and then during the next two months the senate is to get a rest from the tariff bill, which will be laid aside temporarily for the consideration of appropriation bills and important conference reports as they are made ready for senate action.

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST ANTICIPATED

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Plans for the extension of the gospel of Matthew and for the second coming of Christ are being given exhaustive discussion by the quadrennial world conference of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination, now in session here. Predictions made by conference speakers were that Christ will come in the life of the present generation, according to an exact interpretation of the gospel of Matthew.

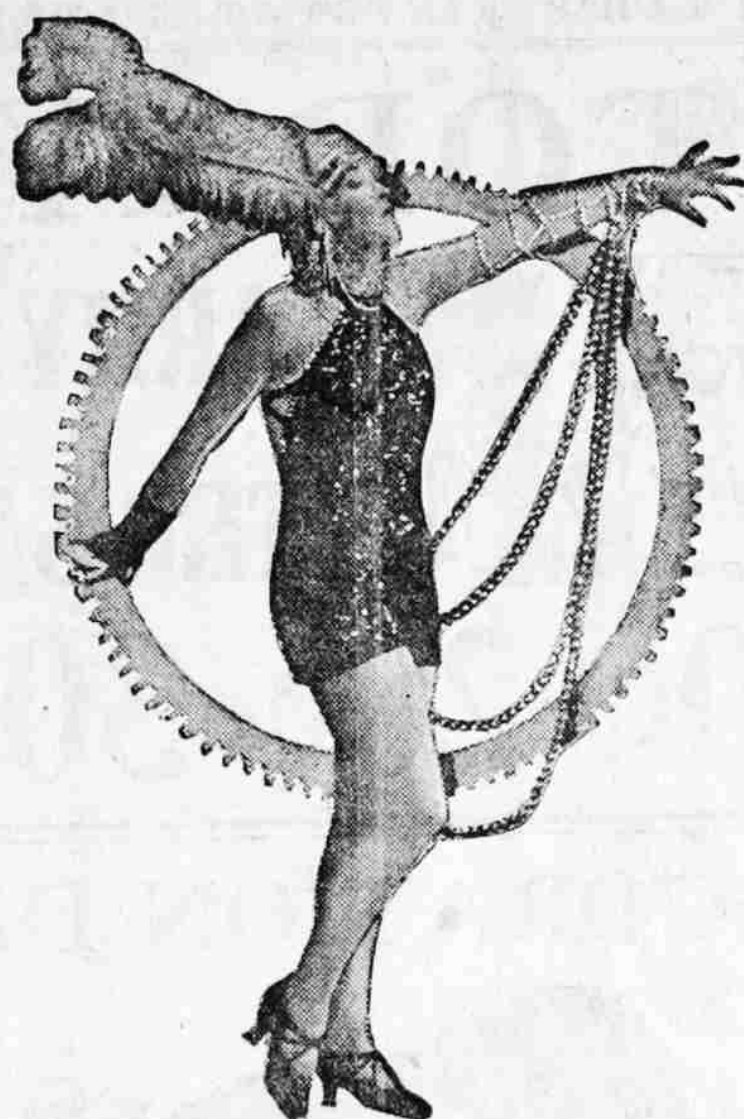

Elders in charge of unions or divisions of the denomination told in the conference of how the gospel is being spread from the glacial stretches of Greenland to the land of the Incas in Peru and of how it is penetrating slowly but persistently into the great mysterious areas of central Africa.

One of those present at the conference as a delegate is Dr. George T. Harding of Worthington, Ohio, brother of President Harding. Dr. Harding is a strong advocate of the necessity of having every missionary equipped with medical knowledge as well as he contends that healing is a potent force in the conversion of non-Christian peoples.

"PEACOCK ALLEY" IS GORGEOUS MOTION PICTURE PRODUCTION

MAE MURRAY
MAE MURRAY.

It is not often that motion picture fans are given the opportunity to see the latest and most stylish costumes presented by one of the most attractive artists of the screen in a story vibrant with romance and adventure, but that is what Mae Murray's latest picture, "Peacock Alley," is. It will be shown beginning Decoration Day at the Alhambra theatre.

In this Metro release for Tiffany Productions, Inc., presented by Robert Z. Leonard, Miss Murray portrays the part of a Parisian dancer, who, as the darling of the famous city of pleasure, is feted and adored for her dancing and artistic creations. She falls in love with a youthful American, a small town boy, and goes back to his home only to find that the people of the little village are scandalized at his French wife. The rude awakening among the bright lights of Broadway gives this story a turn which makes it one of the most dramatic offerings of the screen.—Advertisement

Shut Off Supply of Rum at Source, Is Newest Policy

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Cutting off of illegal liquor at the source rather than the running down of the elusive bootlegger, was defined today at prohibition headquarters as the board policy of dry law enforcement being followed by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

Prohibition enforcement by cutting down the ranks of rum sellers, it was said, is an apparently endless task for as quickly as one is caught another takes his place while by shutting off the supply the bootleggers can be forced out of business.

Withdrawals of liquor from bonded warehouses was the first problem attacked under this policy, officials said, and with the perfection of methods to prevent the counterfeiting of withdrawal permits by the use of special paper and writing machines and the installation of a system of checks on regular permits the leakage of liquor from the storerooms has been reduced to a minimum.

Physicians and druggists, now are being surrounded with safeguards to prevent medical liquor finding its way into illegal channels which leaves illicit distilling and smuggling to be reckoned with as the major problem of enforcement.

rate of accumulation of his estate he will be a millionaire several times over in half cash when he attains his majority, aside from his interest in the great Parker ranch on the island of Hawaii. ## RADIO BRIDGES ARCTIC WASTES

Amundsen Will Transmit
Complete Weather Reports Each Day

SEATTLE, Wash., May 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—A new region, termed a veritable storage battery of storms and calms, will be opened to investigation by Uncle Sam's weather man when Captain Roald Amundsen's Arctic scientific expedition begins its long eastward drift with the polar ice pack during the coming summer. Complete meteorological reports, including temperatures, barometric pressures and wind and moisture data, will be flashed to Washington daily by wireless for the benefit of the forecasters, the explorer announced.

Captain Amundsen, who is personally supervising the outfitting of his ship, the Maud, for the five-year Arctic drift, last week reluctantly parted with his garden of grasses and flowers, transplanted to the Maud two years ago from a bleak bit of the farthest north coast of Asia, and which, although they have withstood temperatures of from 50 to 70 degrees below zero, have thriven and grown larger. The "garden" will be sent to Norway there to await the return of the expedition from the polar fastnesses.

Outfitting of the Maud is practically complete and the vessel prepared to sail from Seattle June 1 on the first stretch of the voyage. Captain Amundsen was much encouraged a few days ago to receive from Nome, Alaska, word that the winter has been mild in more than 20 years, insuring him a passage free from ice to Wrangell Island, off the Siberian coast. There the vessel will "freeze in" with the eastward-drifting pack.

When the Maud sails from Seattle, members of the expedition will be garbed in the clothing ordinarily worn in the mid-latitudes. At Wrangell Island they will be outfitted with complete sets of fur clothing, made during the past winter by Charles Carpendale, lone Siberian trader, with whom Captain Amundsen placed the order more than a year ago.

NOTED CANE MAKER OF HAWAII RETIRES

HONOLULU, T. H., May 27.—Captain James Dower, "the cane-maker of Hawaii," who has presented specimens of his handwork, made from a combination of all Hawaiian woods, to many world personages, has retired after 57 years of residence in Honolulu and has entered the Baldwin home on the island of Maui. He is 82 years old.

Recipient of Captain Dower's canes include the Prince of Wales, Lord Jellicoe, Rear Admiral Fletcher, U. S. N., Admiral Viscount Lionel Halsey, British navy, Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, "Uncle Joe" Cannon, Major James Rolph of San Francisco.

Captain Dower came here in 1865 as a sailor aboard a British sailing vessel. For many years he was a builder of wooden ships.

WOULD CUT ROOT OF DRUG TRAFFIC

PORTLAND, Ore., May 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Oregon Narcotic Control association, which carried on a campaign for several months preceding the enactment by congress of the Jones-Killip bill, which makes more stringent the federal anti-narcotics law, is now engaged in another effort against the drug evil. Backing a movement looking toward an international conference to smash at the root of the traffic, the Oregon delegation in congress has urged the Oregon delegation in congress to work for the passage of the Volk resolution calling for a national legislation of the business in illicit drugs.

Portland newspapers several days ago started a crusade against the drug traffic with the result that city and state officers have been taken up the fight by the Oregon Narcotic Control association, and courts have several narcotic dealers in the penitentiaries for stiff terms.
